How to Use This Interactive Book about Me

Parents/Grandparents/Caregivers

There are many ways to use this interactive book to stimulate your child's creativity and interest in reading and writing. Older children will enjoy completing the sentences, choosing photographs or drawing pictures to create the book on their own. Very young children may require help with printing and pasting. However, be sure to ask for their input. Ask your child questions before deciding on how to complete the sentences, such as: "What is your favorite holiday and why? What traditions, like special food or decorations, does our family have for this holiday? What family or friends do you see on this holiday?" Let the child choose the photographs to use or draw pictures to accompany the text. The shared activity of working and having fun together is one of the great benefits this book can bring you and your child.

How simple or elaborate this book becomes is entirely up to you and your child. Young children may become excited to see and read the entire book with you, so it's possible to finish the book by just completing the text and gluing a photo on each page. If you or your child enjoys the hobby of scrapbooking, you can work on the book in slower stages and add colorful borders, cutouts, or stickers. The printed illustrations and borders are there to enliven the pages for children, but don't be afraid to cover them up with extra photos or decorations of your own choosing. You can also encourage children to add more text to the pages if they wish. To the left are examples of pages from I Like Holidays! completed by parents, grandparents and children.

Many children return to these interactive books over and over again – to read or "tell" the stories to themselves and to share with friends, grandparents, and yes, even the family dog! And, because the book centers on words and pictures from the child's own experiences, it may stimulate greater interest in reading than traditional storybooks do for children with learning, developmental or behavioral challenges. Reading aloud to and with children is the most important activity you can do to assure their success in reading. However you choose to use this book, enjoy the journey it allows you to share with your child!

NOTE: We recommend that children use crayons or colored pencils when working on this book. If using markers, please test for bleed-through before proceeding.

Educators

One of the keys to learning to read is motivation. This interactive book, in which the child provides the text and the important images, creates that motivation. It will engage your students in the development of reading skills and vocabulary through individual life experiences. The book's basic text utilizes Dolch Sight Words in establishing sentence starters for children. (Flesch-Kincaid Readability Level for supplied text is 4.6.) Additional vocabulary specific to content is introduced with words added by students and supported by images (photos or drawings) supplied by them.

I Like Holidays! helps children:

- Learn the meaning of holiday and cultural customs
- Recognize and describe family traditions
- Relate personal and family events to a holiday
- Understand the concept of print
- Understand that illustrations and pictures convey meaning
- Use descriptive language
- Use new vocabulary to describe experiences
- Read familiar stories aloud

Books in the Interactive Book about Me series are designed to help all beginning readers and writers, including English language learners and students identified for Title I or special education programs. The words and images are “owned” by them because they come from the students’ own lives. The books require them to think critically, recall and reflect on their experiences, and then recount them in writing – all helpful in developing language skills.

One great way to utilize these books in your classes is to have your students begin or complete one in preparation for a parents’ open house or parent-teacher conference. They allow you to demonstrate the students’ progress in reading and writing with the end product being a book that parents can take home for shared reading aloud with their child.

If you would like to use any book from the Interactive Book about Me series in your classroom, you may contact the Boys Town Press at 1-800-282-6657 for information about quantity discounts.

Create a Book about Your Child's Favorite Holiday!

This Interactive Book about Me will take parents and children on a reading and writing adventure together. You and your child can relive the fun of preparing for and celebrating a favorite holiday while completing the sentences in your child's own words, pasting photographs, or drawing pictures on these pages.

Completing this book will help young and beginning readers improve their vocabulary, reading, and writing skills. Children also describe their family's traditions of food, clothing, decorations, gift-giving, and storytelling surrounding the chosen holiday.

I Like Holidays! will bring repeated enjoyment and skill development as your child shares reading the book aloud with you, family members, and friends. And, when your child's reading progresses beyond the level of this book, you will have a wonderful keepsake that captures a special event in his or her growing years!

What parents, educators, and others are saying about the Interactive Book about Me series:

"She loved it! Because she helped complete it by drawing pictures and filling in the blanks, it was easy for her to read the pages without having to ask for help."

– CASSANDRA J., MOTHER OF 6-YEAR-OLD

"These books actively engage children in the reading process. Because the focus is on their experiences, children are very motivated and can relate in a meaningful way to text. These books are a major contribution to reading."

– RACHEL BILLMEYER, PH.D., AUTHOR OF LITERACY AND LEARNING TRILOGY

"I love the fact that he takes initiative in reading the book to himself, initiating spontaneous speech, and sitting down for extended periods of time to enjoy the book. He's a 'busy' kid, so these are all goals we work toward with him."

– AMY M., MOTHER OF 2½-YEAR-OLD

"She read it to everyone in our family including our dogs, guinea pig, and hamster! She was very proud of it. I saw her with it at least one to two times a day."

– DOTTIE F., GRANDMOTHER OF 7-YEAR-OLD

Ideal for beginning readers, ages 2-8, English Second Language and Title I students
